

KHAO YAI NATIONAL PARK

ATTRACTION DETAILS

Original: The park, which covers an area of 2,168 square kilometers in the Phanom Dong Rak mountain range, stretches over 4 provinces including Nakhon Ratchasima, Nakhon Nayok, Saraburi, and Prachin Buri. Khao Yai became Thailand's first national park on 18th September 1962 and is also originally recognized as the National Park Heritage of Asian Group Countries.

The park is comprised of mixed forests and rainforests with some wide plains and grasslands interspersed with verdant forests. There are many valuable plants, including commercial plants, scented plants and herbs. In addition, there are several mountains with peaks ranging from 800 to 3,000 meters above sea level making Khao Yai a cool climate area, even in summer.

The most popular time to visit Khao Yai is during the cool season or from October to February. In the rainy season, the area is refreshingly green with overflowing waterfalls, sending echoes all around.

Places of Interest in the Park:

-Haew Narok Waterfall (Namtok Haew Narok)—This is the largest and highest waterfall in the park with 3 levels. The first level is about 60 meters high and water from this level flows straight down to the second and third levels, with a total drop of at least 150 meters. The water has considerable strength in the rainy season and is quite dangerous, but refreshing, when it comes splashing down on rocks at the bottom. The area around the waterfall is the usual feeding grounds of wild elephants. There have been occasional accidents when elephants drop from the cliff and die. For a beautiful view of the waterfall, visitors can walk 1 kilometer from the main road to a viewpoint. The waterfall itself is located to the south of the Park Office on the way to Prachin Buri.

-Haew Suwat Waterfall—Haew Suwat Waterfall (Namtok Haew Suwat)—This is a famous waterfall that cascades from a 20-meters high cliff. The waterfall, which is located at the end of Thanarat Road and being accessible by car, is only 100 meters by foot from the parking lot or a 3-kilometer walk from Pha Klui Mai Waterfall. Visitors can view the falls from a distant viewpoint that offers a high-angle view of the waterfall through the trees or from the waterfall itself. However, please note that in the rainy season the water flows rapidly and caution should be taken.

Primo Piazza Khao Yai

Primo Piazza Khaoyai paints an unforgettable impression of tranquility - a place where leisure harmonizes with nature. Farmchokchai

Originally, Farm Chokchai was solely an agriculture venture in a country deeply rooted in farming. The beauty of an agricultural business is that our knowledge is gleaned from almost every activity.

Farm Chokchai continues to evolve as our experienced farmers pass on expertise to the next generation of agronomists. The experience gained over the generations has greatly contributed to our development from a well-established agriculture business into a dynamic company that now includes a vibrant customer-centered service division.

Over the 10 years of showing our visitors the art and science of the agriculture business, Farm Chokchai has inspired many people and become the legendary leader of agricultural innovation in Thailand. This is made evident simply by the sheer number of visitors every year, currently standing at about 300,000, as well as the recognition from the industry, society and the countless requests by various organizations for our executives to give lectures and provide extensive information.

The success story of Farm Chokchai has gained much public attention, such that the style of our business management, marketing, and HR management has become one of our popular new products.

A New Experience with Farm Chokchai Agro Tour.

Suwan Farm's Sweet Corn

Formerly called Thana Farm as it belonged to Field Marshall Sarit Thanarat, the Farm was later transferred to Kasetsart University and became the Maize and Sorghum Research Center. The main purpose of the Center is to carry out research and publicize technology for the growing of maize and sorghum as well as other field crops. The center also provides other supports for research and training in both domestic and international levels apart from producing seeds of maize, sorghum and other field crops. Basic tourist facilities provided are a touring route, toilets, and field crop seeds for sale and food stalls.

Secret Art Garden

What was once an open corn field, now Secret Art Garden is filled with big trees and colorful flowers. Secret Art Garden is a brainchild of a couple whose dream was to create a manmade forest on an empty land. Over 20 years have passed; we now witness the great the result of their work, a manmade forest with more than 10,000 trees.

Unlike any other natural or botanical gardens, "Secret Art Garden" is where the hidden beauty of art lies. Within and throughout the garden, plants cover and enhance artistic details, sculptures and other artwork which are featured. The "secrets" hidden within the walls of the garden are like treasure hidden away from prying eyes or time itself.

Today, we hand you the key to unlock the door to a place where art and nature blend harmoniously. Secret Art Garden serves as the destination where families and friends can enjoy and appreciate the beauty of nature together with artistic influence and splendor.
